

National Media Panel: The Politics of Healthcare

Monday, April 8, 2019
Marriott Marquis, Washington, DC

TIMOTHY BISHOP, Moderator

At St. Joseph's College New York, Bishop serves as Director of the Center for Community Solutions and Visiting Professor. Bishop serves as Senior Advisor at Envision Strategies, a Washington, D.C.-based government relations firm, and also lectures on how public policy effects access to healthcare.

From 1973 to 2002, Bishop was employed by Southampton College of Long Island University (LIU) in a succession of increasingly responsible administrative positions, including the position of campus provost. In 2002, Bishop left Southampton College to represent New York's 1st congressional district in the U.S. House of Representatives for six terms, serving as a member of the Higher Education and the Education and Workforce committees, as well as the Ranking Democrat of the Water Resources and Environment sub-committee.

VICTORIA COLLIVER, Panelist

Victoria Colliver is POLITICO Pro's California-based health care reporter. Before joining POLITICO, Victoria had been writing about the health industry and medicine for the San Francisco Chronicle since 2001. Prior to the Chronicle, she worked for the San Francisco Examiner and the Oakland Tribune.

A graduate of University of California, Davis, Victoria earned a master's degree in journalism from Columbia University. She had an Inter American Press Association fellowship to Venezuela, was a Fulbright scholar in Madrid, Spain, and is a longtime member of the Association of Health Care Journalists. A native of the San Francisco Bay Area, she lives in Oakland.

CAITLIN HUEY-BURNS, Panelist

Caitlin Huey-Burns is a political reporter for CBS News, currently covering the 2020 presidential race among other national political issues. She previously worked as a national political reporter for RealClearPolitics, covering the 2016 presidential race, Capitol Hill, and reporting on a variety of subjects, including the federal budget standoffs, gun legislation, immigration reform, and midterm elections. Caitlin has also written about politics for Glamour Magazine and Women's Health, and appeared on various cable news programs to provide new analysis.

NOAM LEVEY, Panelist

Noam N. Levey writes for the Los Angeles Times about national healthcare policy out of Washington, DC. He covered passage of the 2010 Affordable Care Act and has written extensively about the landmark law and reported on its implementation from around the country. A former investigative and political reporter, he is a Boston native and a graduate of Princeton University. He joined the newspaper in 2003 and has reported from Washington since 2006.

SUSANNAH LUTHI, Panelist

Susannah Luthi covers health policy and politics in Congress for Modern Healthcare. Most recently, Luthi covered health reform and the Affordable Care Act exchanges for Inside Health Policy. She returned to journalism from a stint abroad exporting vanilla in Polynesia. She has a bachelor's degree in Classics and journalism from Hillsdale College in Michigan and a master's in professional writing from the University of Southern California.

